

4.5 Months In One Post

Thursday, 14 May 2009

Quite a few things have happened since my last post. Let me start where I left off.

I got married on December 27th 2008 in Grove Oklahoma to my beautiful bride Cynthia LeeAnn Yirsa. We had been dating/engaged for about two years. Our wedding was great. The weather worked out perfectly which was awesome. It was a little chilly for Cynthia but that's nothing new. For our honeymoon we went on a cruise to the Western Caribbean area. Our stops were Grand Cayman, Montego Bay, and Cozumel. We swam with dolphins, climbed a waterfall and went climbing and snorkeling.

After we got back from our honeymoon we just got back into the groove of going to work and being married. It's different but in a good way. I love being married and having a wife to come home to everyday.

In April we went to see my parents and their new house they had just finished up. We had a great time with them. We went down to the boardwalk and walked around and went to church with them. Cynthia and my mom went and had a day at the nail salon while my dad and I went around to the ice houses and rummaged through the shop a little.

For my birthday Cynthia made me waffles for breakfast and gave me my first gift of the day, a WTD Plushie , the main character from my favorite web comic "What the Duck ." For lunch Cynthia took me to Bad Brads BBQ where she gave me my second gifts, a skylight filter for my video camera and some aperture rings for my lensbaby lens. After we got home from work Cynthia started working on dinner, chicken enchiladas, which were really good. After we ate she gave me my third and final gift, a Wacom Bamboo Fun tablet which rocks. I've been using it every day.

I've been building tons of sites at work and I'm really enjoying my job. Hopefully I can start blogging more frequently (aka: more than once every 5 months).